Department of Economics

On January 10, 2017, a state level seminar on 'Impact of brexit on Indian Economy' was organized by the Department of Economics. The seminar was organized to discuss in depth how Britain's exit from the European Union will affect the global economy and developing economies like India. The seminar was inaugurated by Pune University BCUD Director Dr. V. B. Gaikwad It was done by . Principal Dr. Subhash Nikam of the college presided over the inauguration ceremony. Introduction of the seminar, HOD of Economics, Dr. S. P. Devere did.

Professors, researchers and students of economics departments of various colleges of the state participated in the seminar. Britain is a developed country in Europe. If Britain leaves the European Union, it could have an impact on the global economy. But the seminar concluded that the biggest impact would be on European economies. 28 researchers read their research articles in this seminar. On this occasion, various queries of the students were observed by the expert guides.

Famous economist of Maharashtra Dr. as chief guest for the closing ceremony of the seminar. It was Vinayak Govilkar. Vinayak Govilkar expressed his opinion that if Britain leaves the European Union, it may have a mixed effect on the Indian economy. Britain is known globally as a major industrialized country. Govilkar convinced with the help of examples that the possibility of adverse effect of Britain on the country with which it has commercial relations for some time cannot be ruled out. At the end of the program, certificates were distributed to the participating professors and students.
